

National Assembly for Education

Sunday 30 January, 11am–5pm
The Quad, LSE, Houghton Street, London WC2A 2AE

The protests, walkouts and occupations of last term were just the first chapter in a much longer struggle for the right to education and against Con Dem austerity.

In 2011 as university managements gear up to implement massive fees increases and students and staff are faced with vicious attacks on courses, jobs and our education we will need to go further.

The first National Assembly for Education is open to students, staff and all supporters of our movement: let's get together and discuss the future of education and how we fight for it.

Called by university occupations including Kings College London, LSE, Sheffield, Manchester, UWE and UEL. Supported by Education Activist Network, National Campaign Against Fees and Cuts, London Student Assembly.

Sessions include:

- Planning and coordinating future actions.
- Break out sessions for university students * school and college students * education workers.
- Opening plenary with activist Jody McIntyre, Mohamed Bani (eyewitness to Tunisian revolution) and occupiers from round the country.

To contribute or get involved contact
nationalassemblyforeducation@gmail.com
<http://educationassembly.wordpress.com/>

National Assembly for Education

Sunday 30 January, 11am–5pm
The Quad, LSE, Houghton Street, London WC2A 2AE

The protests, walkouts and occupations of last term were just the first chapter in a much longer struggle for the right to education and against Con Dem austerity.

In 2011 as university managements gear up to implement massive fees increases and students and staff are faced with vicious attacks on courses, jobs and our education we will need to go further.

The first National Assembly for Education is open to students, staff and all supporters of our movement: let's get together and discuss the future of education and how we fight for it.

Called by university occupations including Kings College London, LSE, Sheffield, Manchester, UWE and UEL. Supported by Education Activist Network, National Campaign Against Fees and Cuts, London Student Assembly.

Sessions include:

- Planning and coordinating future actions.
- Break out sessions for university students * school and college students * education workers.
- Opening plenary with activist Jody McIntyre, Mohamed Bani (eyewitness to Tunisian revolution) and occupiers from round the country.

To contribute or get involved contact
nationalassemblyforeducation@gmail.com
<http://educationassembly.wordpress.com/>